Sailing Bassa Da India

Nestled halfway between Madagascar and the Mozambican town of Vilanculos, is Bassa Da India – one of the world's last remaining pristine fishing and diving destination. This virgin coral atoll rises sharply from an ocean depth of 3000 m and provides sanctuary to some of the finest pelagic game fish on the planet; including marlin, sailfish, kingfish, a multitude of tuna species, reel-busting wahoo and countless others.

Over time, the atoll has claimed a plethora of ships on its rocky rim. These historical wrecks provide intrepid explorers with outstanding sightseeing opportunities during low tide.

Things to keep in mind

An adventure at sea requires careful planning. Remember to pack the appropriate clothing and to bring along all your personal requirements. Don't worry though, we will guide you and will provide you with all the pre-trip information you require.

We cannot guarantee the weather, however we can guarantee our passengers an experience of a lifetime.
